The Green Street Butchers

By Mearr Hurn

Hello, my name is Mearr!

I am very small, you can fit me in your pocket!

Today I am going to the butchers, would you like to come with me?

My local butchers is on Green Street. The building is very big!

You can see the meat from the window!

I opened the door into a very cold room, must be to keep the meat from rotting!

This is Greg the butcher.

My mum says he's been working here since he was tiny. I bet he wasn't as small as me though!

Greg is slicing pieces of red meat to be sold.
He is in a world of his own, he must love his job.

Greg said "Do you know that chicken is Britain's favourite meat? We ate 529 million kilograms of it in 2016, and 511 million kilograms of red

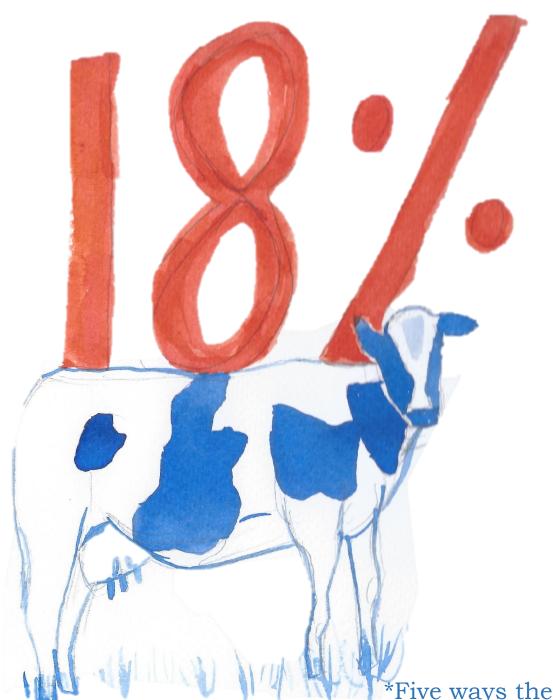

*White Meat Overtakes Red Meat in Popularity for the First Time in Britain, The independent

Meat is very strange looking.

Mince meat looks like blood soaked packing peanuts!

I wonder if Greg knows that livestock farming contributes '18% of human produced greenhouse gas emissions worldwide'*

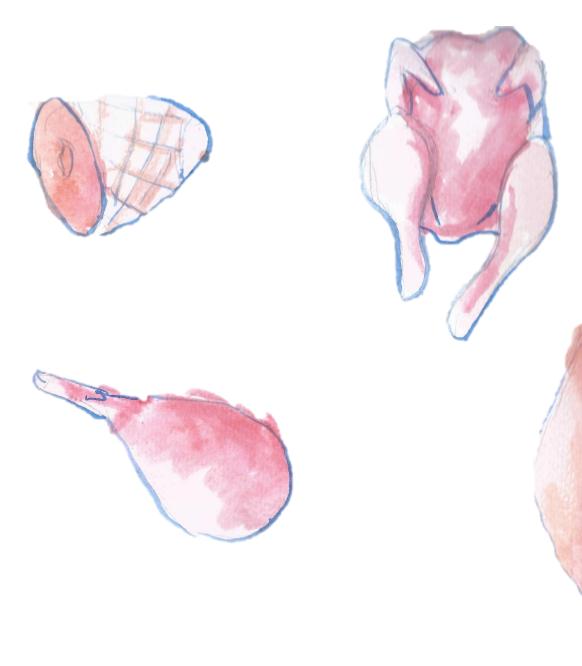

Five ways the meat on your plate is killing the planet, The Conversation

Do you think Greg knows that '8 million livestock animals raised in the United States use half the water consumed in the country?'*

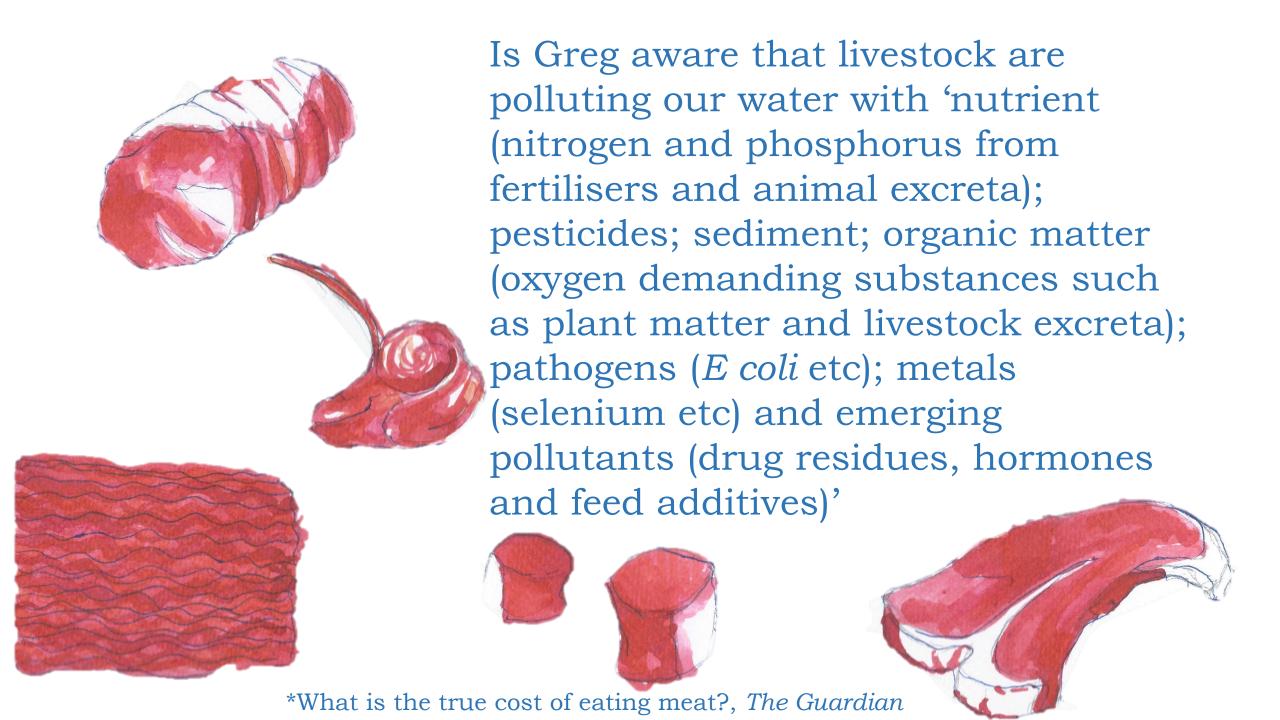

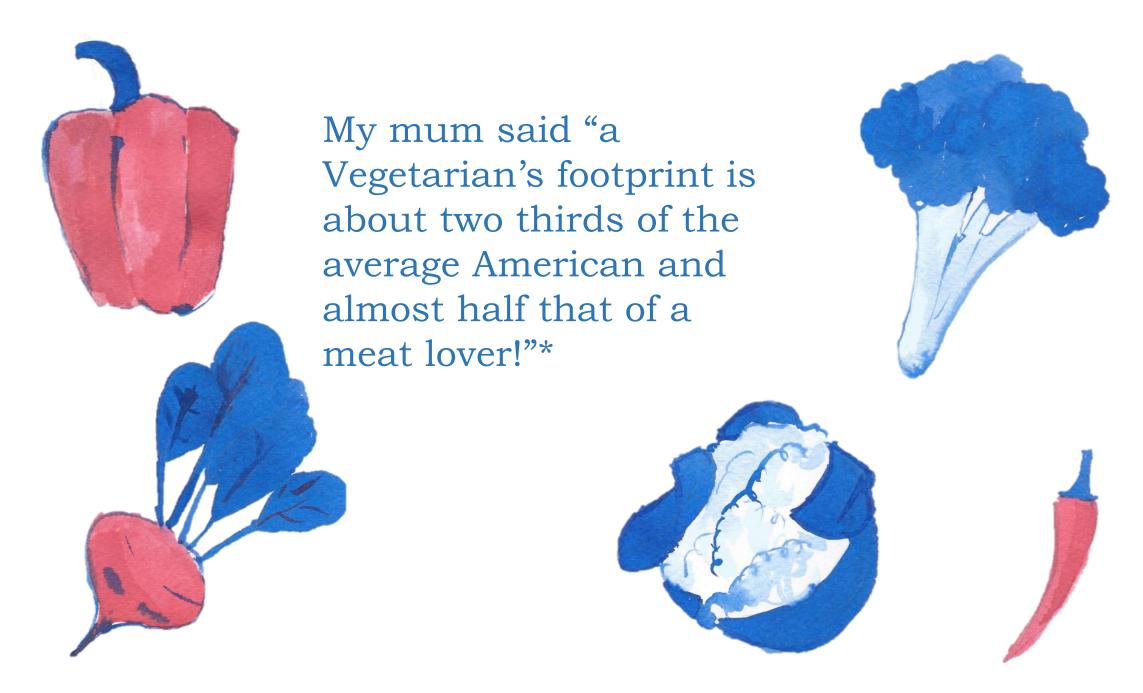

*The Gross way water pollution from Livestock Affects You, One Green Planet

I wonder what Greg thinks about the fact that '4.5 pounds of feed produces just 1 pound of chicken'*

^{*10} scary facts about meat and the environment, One Green Planet

The Carbon Foodprint of 5 diets compared, Shrink that food

Meat sure does cause a lot of problems for our environment!

I think I'll turn vegetarian...

Goodbye Green Street Butchers,

Goodbye Greg

