

(tele)consequences - a call for participation

Join us online for a game of (tele)consequences on the 23rd and 24th May 2017.

University of Brighton

Staff and students from the BA(Hons) Illustration course at the University of Brighton, will be taking part in the 'Going Global 2017 Conference' at the British Council London by drawing, painting and collaging on a large scroll of white paper onto which you can also draw simultaneously via Skype.

Call and send us your live drawing so we can project them onto the scroll of paper and send you a live video of our superimposed drawings.

We can add, converse and perform through our collaboration in any format you choose, from pencils and paints to collage and objects.

All you need to do is mount your smart-phone or tablet above your drawing surface so your hands are free to 'draw' beneath it on camera.

Call us on Skype (tele) consequences and you will see our combined image on the screen of your device, whilst you are able to contribute to it live.

Just try to keep your device as steady as possible and join us on the 23rd and 24th May from 10:45 to 18:00 British Summer Time (BST).

In keeping with the British Council Conference theme:

'Global cities: connecting talent, driving change'

we will focus our attention on future cities and cityscapes – from megacities to virtual cities. All our collaborative (tele)consequences work and participants names will be presented during the conference and recorded as part of our ongoing experimentation.

If you would like to take part please email us: j.radvan@brighton.ac.uk and p.sermon@brighton.ac.uk

Visit our blog for more information and news... <https://blogs.brighton.ac.uk/tele-consequences/>

British Council Going Global 2017 <https://www.britishcouncil.org/going-global>