

PORT-
FOLIO /

ART DIRECTION

ISOBEL BRADY

This portfolio is an exploration of ideas into over consumption and waste in our vast environments. Created as part of an annual publication titled 'Skröp', its aim is to highlight the negativity in waste through conceptual graphics and textual content.

Photography, Styling & Creative Direction for all content by Isobel Brady.

1 / The Fast Fashion industry is forever supplying the high street with new trends vastly increasing the rate of consumption. Using new in trends, this series explores the ease of replicating current trends through trash objects.

Model (left) Jacket and trousers: Model own
Model (right) Blazer: British Heart Foundation
Dress Models Own

Blazer: British Heart Foundation
Top: Depop

2. / With our society today cling wrapped in plastic, the movement to reduce our plastic consumption and developing alternative materials to combat the crisis is on the rise. This series shows the dirty, single use plastics that we use day to day, in a delicate and luminous way that highlights the downfall in consuming plastic items.

3. / Vintage and secondhand shops are supplying the fashion concious with stand out looks supplimenting the garment waste that finds its way to landfill. Styling with second hand clothes broadens the knowledge of the consumer into buying clothes slow rather than buying clothes fast.

Model (Above)
Green Satin Top & Hat: Oxfam
(Current Page)
Blazer and Trousers: British Heart Foundation
Green Top: Debra Charity Hair Tie: Oxfam

Spot Blouse: Ian Rennie Hospice
Zebra sleeve top:
Models Own Trousers: Depop
Beaded Bag: Debra Charity

Coat, Shirt and Jumper: Models own,
Trousers: Depop
Beaded Bag: Debra Charity
Objects (RIGHT):
Recycling and miscellaneous beach waste

4. / Waste and consumerism come hand in hand; Distinguishing the difference between the desire to want and the need for new things has blurred, with the support from advertisement and marketing. Discarding objects has become a common practise in our society today, whether it be on the streets of Brighton and Hove to the council funded recycling centres, and this series of images explores the value of these objects.

5. / The discarding of objects is transferred into the food industry with masses of edible food being sent to landfill each year. These images are a manipulation of food waste, enhanced by distortion techniques to create vibrant and contextual imagery.

SNOOPERS
PARADISE
KENSINGTON GARDENS
BRIGHTON
602558
STALL No

