

SOCIAL FABRIC

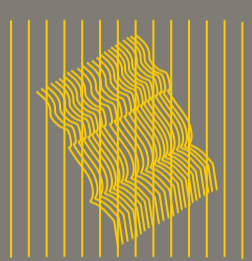

Re-Imagining the material and cultural landscape of our place.

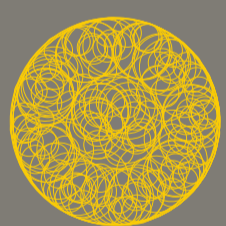

STUDIO

Through our studio, we will Re-Think the relationships between people and place mediated by materials and processes of Re-Making.

STUDIO

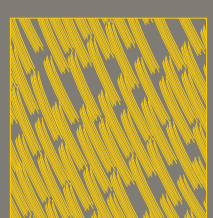

Re-Map the different environments that our participants live through the prism of 'abundance, waste(d) opportunities, 'spin-out' benefits for more 'virtuous-circular-economies' and local-productive-habitats.

Re-Mine the material and human Re-Source to uncover new (or latent) opportunities for Re-constructing our physical-places and social-spaces

Re-write our 'multi-local' material narratives and Re-Form our interconnections as a means to..

Re-Define and Re-Cast the role of designers and makers as curators of new social, cultural and environmental systems and services.

Re-Make Meaning in an age of environmental crisis, social and political repression and cultural homogenisation.
