

Stop the redundancies

Save Brighton Uni

The University of Brighton has announced plans to sack 130 members of staff, with approximately 400 academics at risk of redundancy.

They claim they need to save money, but the University has spent over £50m on building projects in the last two years!

The huge spend on new buildings is part of a plan apparently intended to allow the University to “grow student numbers”. But expensive buildings don’t teach! And our student-staff ratio is already the 97th worst in the UK. If anything, staff numbers need to be increased.

100 fewer lecturers + more students = worse conditions for all

Cutting staff will reduce the quality of education at our University: an attack on education is an attack on students.

The University was not in financial trouble when the Vice Chancellor took over in 2015. The VC has consistently mismanaged this institution and is now attempting to make ordinary staff pay for her mistakes. We call on the VC and the Senior Management Team to resign.

We will do everything in our power to fight against job cuts. Staff should not be made to pay for the failures of management.

Staff and students are uniting to Save Brighton University!
